To William Lloyd Garrison

[Western Reserve College, Hudson, O.] Claims that "it is an act of high-handed tyranny for any master to impose upon them [the slaves] the necessity of going to Liberia or continuing in servitude ... Every act by which the master controls the movements of his slaves, is an act of tyranny ... Can a man reduce his brother into a piece of property under any higher motive than a love of gain? ... What shall a man do with laws, which require him to commit iniquity? ... Does he [the editor of the Recorder] not know that laws, which require men to live in sin, are to be broken ..." The foregoing is a rough draft of an article submitted to the Liberator. B. G. includes a letter of transm[illegible] in which he says he knows the editor of the Recorder [illegible].

To John Singleton Copley, for his daughter Elizabeth.

[Surrey Super Coffee House, Fleet St.] Is about to leave for the country, and wishes to convey his thanks to the Copleys for their interest in his welfare during his stay. Writes extemporaneously a short poem to Miss Copley, called "On Miss Copley and her incomparable taste for artificial flowers." A.L.S. 2p. 9 x 7 1/4 in.

This poem has been attributed to Edward King, 1735-1807; a lawyer who lived in London. Anthony King was writing in Dublin in 1795, and was a poet and theological writer. The autograph signature is undoubtedly "Anth: King."

Greene, Mrs. Elizabeth (Copley) 1770-1866; wife of Gardiner Greene.

1793 Dec 17 Startin, Mrs. Sarah (Clarke) 1750-18 ? an aunt to Elizabeth Copley.

To Elizabeth Copley, her "Eliza."

[New York.] Acknowledges the receipt of "kind Favor" delivered by Mr. Palethorp. Delayed writing until genius should inspire her with an answer which would do justice to the gift. Comments on Eliza's handwriting. Tells about a call which "the lady of our Renown General Gates" made upon her. Feels concern for friends in Philadelphia whence Mr. Startin is gone. Has become interested in horse-back riding and asks Eliza to make her a new habit. Hopes to send a barrel of meal if possible to get it aboard a vessel. Sends best wishes to the family and thanks Eliza again for the cap which is "very becoming." A.L.S. 4p. 10 x [illegible].

To Miss Copley (Elizabeth?)

[Written from?] Was glad to receive her kind letter. Feels a desire to see the painting "wherein your portrait and those of your brother and sister are introduced," but cannot at present visit London. Finds that she cannot live with her mother-in-law and is staying with her sister in Glasgow. May be permitted later to move to her brother's but gives her present address as Overton House, near Hamilton, in the care of John Stuart. A.L.S. 3p. 9 x 7 1/4 in.

The painting referred to is probably "The Red Cross Knight."

Society (Mrs. Maria Weston Chapman)

<Philadelphia> The Board of the Philadelphia Female Anti-Slavery Society has, after renewed discussion, decided that the plan (of the Boston Society) was "expedient and desirable," although some members would have preferred recognition of "female members and delegates in the American Society." New York in the second week of May was suggested as the most likely place and time. The writer mentions a case in Philadelphia of a reputed slave woman imprisoned, awaiting the decree of a court. The Memorial of the Philadelphia Society makes larger demands on Congress than the [illegible]ssachusetts> Petition.

The writer, to whom Miss Knight read part of a letter she sent to the addressee, hopes some portions of this will be thought worthy of publication in the Liberator. Wendell and Ann Phillips, "our cousins," have gone to Germany and plan to spend the winter in Paris.

.Philadelphia. Acknowledges gift for the Philadelphia fair, which was unusually successful; preparations are begun for a superior one this year. The writer is glad to learn from the addressee's report of the Mass. Society's meeting that interest there was unabated, although the Emancipator said that the old Society "is dead, or dying." Sydney Howard Gay wrote to J.M. McKim that the Standard was "on its last legs," and must stop at the end of the year. McKim favors reducing price and size of the Standard and making it more of a national paper. Cheering news has come from Virginia and Maryland about demand for Anti-Slave[illegible]publications. F. [Philadelphia] The writer inquires, in the interest of the Philadelphia Female A.S. Society, if it would be expedient to engage Miss Lucy Stone for a few weeks as a lecturer to women. Seeks the opinion of the addressee and of the writer's cousin, Wendell Phillips. Asks a number of questions about Miss Stone, such as: "Does she wear well?" "Is her conversation instructive and interesting to the unenlightened?" Laments the absence of Mrs. Chapman. Preparations for the next fair (in Philadelphia) have begun. "We mean to have a better one than we have ever yet held." The writer will send the Annual Report and "a sermon, recently preached by Mr[illegible]Lucretia] Mott to the medical students of this city."
